At Sluzewiec, seven kilometers south of the main railroad station in Warsaw, between the railroad and highway to Radom, there is a camp with approximately 2,000 forced laborers. These laborers have recently built, among other things, a three-story house approximately 1,700 meters south of the locality of Sluzewiec. The house was equipped by UB (Security Police) technicians and materials came from Warsaw in trucks under armed guard. According to rumors which are circulating, the house is being equipped to house a concealed radio station, and possibly also a radar installation.
